Dedication

Dedication

With pleasure we dedicate this year's FALCON to one of our most admired teachers, Mrs. Melba McWilliams.

After graduating from Ballard High School in Seattle, she decided to take advanced work at the University of Washington where she received her Bachelor of Science degree.

Mrs. "Mac," as she is affectionately called by her students, began teaching at L.H.S. in 1940 remaining until 1943, after which time she taught in Kirkland and Long Beach, California. In 1947 she returned to the Island and has played an important part in school life since that time.

Her teaching assignments have included mathematics, languages, commercial, library, music and dramatics. Her role in extra-curricular activities is no less spectacular having served as sponsor for all classes, coached plays, directed music groups, supervised Junior Prom and Junior-Senior Banquet to mention just a few.

In addition to maintaining a home for her family, Mrs. McWilliams has found time to participate in community affairs including Eastern Star, Professional Businesswomen's Club, Campfire Girls and religious work.

To Mrs. McWilliams then, in view of her outstanding record of service to Langley High School and the community, we respectfully dedicate this 1953 FALCON.

Senior Class History

The first gathering of the class of '53 was an awesome one. On that bright September morning the following eight timid souls got together in the first grade: Phyllis Boardman, Gloria Porter, Sigrid Heggenes, Marian Peters, Al Hagglund, Jack Simmons, Bob Surface and Norm Thompson.

The class really got rolling during the second grade with the addition of Carol Jensen, Ted Thompson, Dennis Fowler, Roger Gabelein, and Ed Howard, who discovered that they would be forced to attend LGS because their former school, Bay View, had gone out of business. Dick Bryant, a former Island resident who couldn't resist the lure of good old Whidbey, returned and joined the class that same year.

Marilyn Jensen was the next to join the ranks. She entered the third grade from Chehalis. Dorothy Day was the next person to become a member of the class. She soon discovered she preferred our fourth grade terrors to those she had met in Seattle.

The girls got a break during the fifth grade when two of our more rugged(?) males moved in. They were Gary Kohlwes from Ballard and By Worland from Grants Pass, Oregon. Jean Hurt also dared to make the ferry ride and left her old domicile of Edmonds.

To help make the last year of grade school something to remember Ken Seaton left Seattle to add his smiling face to the, by then, notorious class of '53.

The class was much too well mannered to cause any commotion during their freshman year in high school, but they hit the jackpot during their sophomore year. That year saw Jerri Armstrong leave Seattle for us, only then she spelled it Jerry. It also saw Gertie Lau desert Cleveland of Seattle, Al Brager leave his North Bend, Oregon, home, and Lorren Olsen and John Waddell, fugitives from Mukilteo, succumb to the charms of LHS. The fame of the class had spread so far that Mary Lou Anderson left Ballard to join us for the last three weeks of school.

Jack Scheller, another lad from Mukilteo who found Everett High not to his liking, decided to keep Lorren and John company on the ferry ride. Ole didn't go for this, and fled to Everett for the last six weeks of the year, only to finally acknowledge the superiority of LHS and return for his senior year.

Mariel Jenkins heard about the fabulous fifty-threers way up at Blaine and moved down for her senior year. The second semester of our final year saw Charles Shelley come back to graduate and Harold Dull, a former resident, return to become the final members of the class, swelling the graduating class to thirty members.

Class Prophecy

Looking far into the deep, deep future of the nineteen-fifty-three graduates of Langley High School, we found a bright light shining on the desk in the home of the world renowned financier, Albert Hagglund. Mr. Hagglund was sitting at his desk dictating to his secretary, Mary Lou Anderson, who was perched on his knee, when there was a crash and through the window came a rock with an envelope tied to it. He opened the envelope and took out two slips of paper. One was a ticket to the circus the next night and on the other was scrawled two words, "BE THERE."

Mr. Hagglund told his secretary to call a detective. She dialed a number and at the other end of the line she heard, "Jensen and Jensen, Girl Detective Agency." These were the two commonly known as Supersleuth Marilyn and Hawkeye Carol. After instructing them to take the ticket and go to the circus the next night, the Hagglund household went to bed.

The next evening finds Hawkeye and Supersleuth driven by taxicab driver Jack Simmons. They got to the circus just as it was about to begin. On the way through the midway they saw Roger Gabelein and Mariel Jenkins and their famous sextuplets who were eating cotton candy bought from Charles Shelley, the candy man.

When they stepped inside and found their seats they heard a laugh which they remembered from high school days. Looking around they noticed Marian Peters. She told them she was principal of a Siamese grade school and came to the circus for a vacation from Siam.

When the show was almost over, Hawkeye spied a very suspicious looking clown and went to the circus door to capture him. Upon removing his wig and glasses she found it to be Gary Kohlwes and everyone knows he was always too bashful to play that kind of a trick.

All this was getting Hawkeye and Supersleuth nowhere and they were becoming riled so they called in Bob Surface and Norm Thompson, finger print experts for the police, to check for prints on the circus ticket. After close examination it was found that the prints belonged to either Dennis Fowler, a famous plastic surgeon, or Allen Brager, a race horse jockey. Further investigation disclosed Allen had been associated with two questionable women, Phyllis Boardman and Gloria Porter, who were famous gun molls posing as professional baby sitters.

Following a hunch they went to John Waddell's restaurant where the waiters, Ken Seaton and By Worland, told them Al Brager was in the back room with Ed Howard and Harold Dull, the big gamblers, but the waitresses, Gertie Lau and Jerri Armstrong, said he had been there for five days, and the receptionist, Sigrid Heggenes, backed up the alibi.

The only thing left to do was to hunt up the other suspect. They went to the Bryant Hotel owned by Richard L. Bryant and the switchboard operator directed them to the seventh floor office of Dennis Fowler.

The elevator boy, Lorren Olsen, took them, by mistake, to the ninth floor where Ted Thompson, the famous singer, was practicing for his next show.

When they went down to talk to Dr. Fowler he confessed he had thrown the rock because a mysterious voice over the phone threatened him with his life if he didn't.

Hawkeye and Supersleuth went back to the Hagglund house and called the household staff into the den. Pointing their fingers at one of the upstairs maids they said, "Jean Hurt, you called Dr. Fowler and scared him into throwing the rock through the window so Mr. Hagglund would go to the circus and you could be alone in the house with the milkman Jack Scheller." Whereupon the other upstairs maid, Dorothy Day, started screaming, "You stole my boyfriend!"

We will never know who the culprit was because the light dimmed at that point and we were taken back again to 1953.

Last Will and Testament

We, the graduating class of 1953, realizing that we are about to pass forever from these halls of learning and desiring to leave some small reminders of our years in attendance, do declare and publish our last will and testament in form and manner following:

I, MARY LOU ANDERSON, leave my sloppy fall of '52 Student Body minutes to future secretaries to decipher.

I, JERRI ARMSTRONG, leave my favorite chair in Mr. Jenkins' office to Delores Trumbull in the hope she never uses it.

I, PHYLLIS BOARDMAN, leave my bottle of peroxide to Donna Olsen, hoping that she may stay a beautiful blonde.

I, AL BRAGER, leave my ability to skip school and get away with it to Delores Trumbull.

I, DICK BRYANT, leave my diaper to Dick Bradshaw.

WE, DOROTHY DAY AND MARIEL JENKINS, leave our good behavior in study hall to anyone who is fool enough to believe us.

I, HAROLD DULL, leave my little black book to Gilbert Smith, in the hope he will benefit by it.

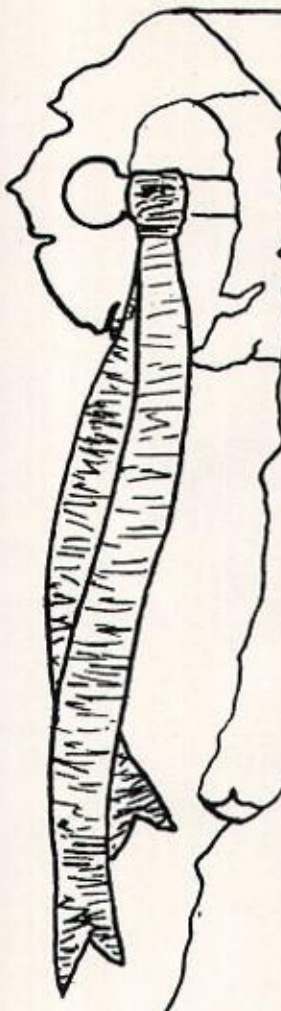
I, DENNIS FOWLER, leave all the short circuits in my Ford to any person unfortunate enough to buy one.

I, ROGER GABELEIN, leave to Ricky Day my speed in running errands for Mrs. Minium.

I, ALBERT HAGGLUND, do not leave anything because my grandmother was frightened by a Scotsman.

I, SIGRID HEGGENES, leave my ability to burn the midnight oil, especially on week-ends, to anyone who will use the time as effectively as I have for "studying."

I, ED HOWARD, just leave. "After four years of drudgery that's enough," he says.



I, CAROL JENSEN, leave my bottles of correction fluid and my messy drawer in the press room to Keren Kingsley.

I, MARILYN JENSEN, leave all my band music to Carl Hjort.

I, GARY KOHLNES, leave my ability to catch fish to Mr. Jenkins, feeling deep pity for those who can't.

I, GERTRUDE LAU, leave my height to Dick Bradshaw.

I, LORREN OLSEN, leave my used ferry tickets to Mr. Jenkins, who kept me coming on that "tub" so regularly.

I, MARIAN PETERS, leave my jokes to the Biology class so they can become better educated in the facts of corn.

I, GLORIA PORTER, leave my cashiers job in the cafeteria to anyone wanting it.

I, JACK SCHELLER, leave my hooky playing to anyone who wants to take the chance of getting caught.

I, KEN SEATON, leave my coaching ability to Bob Sandal.

I, CHARLES SHELLEY, leave my best regards to the Junior class.

I, JACK SIMMONS, leave my battery to Ted Meinhold because he needs the charge.

I, BOB SURFACE, leave my curly hair to Mr. Anderson.

I, NORM THOMPSON, leave my bookkeeping to Gordon Heggenes in the hope he puts it to better use than I did.

I, TED THOMPSON, leave my bent axle to the next guy who gets Christmas trees for the school.

I, BYRON WORLAND, leave my manly chest to Payton Rudd.

I, JOHN WADDELL, leave my ability to mooch food from Mrs. Cook to Roy Hagglund.

I, JEAN HURT, leave my answers to the Hamlet test to the Class of '54

Basketball

Although the won and lost column doesn't look impressive, the FALCONS gave the home town fans many thrills as most of their games were won or lost by close margins. While losing lettermen Hagglund, Olsen, Brager, Kohlwes and Bryant, the FALCONS, with Richardson, Erickson, Trumbull, Lanktree and Heggenes returning should shape into a promising team for the 1953-54 season.

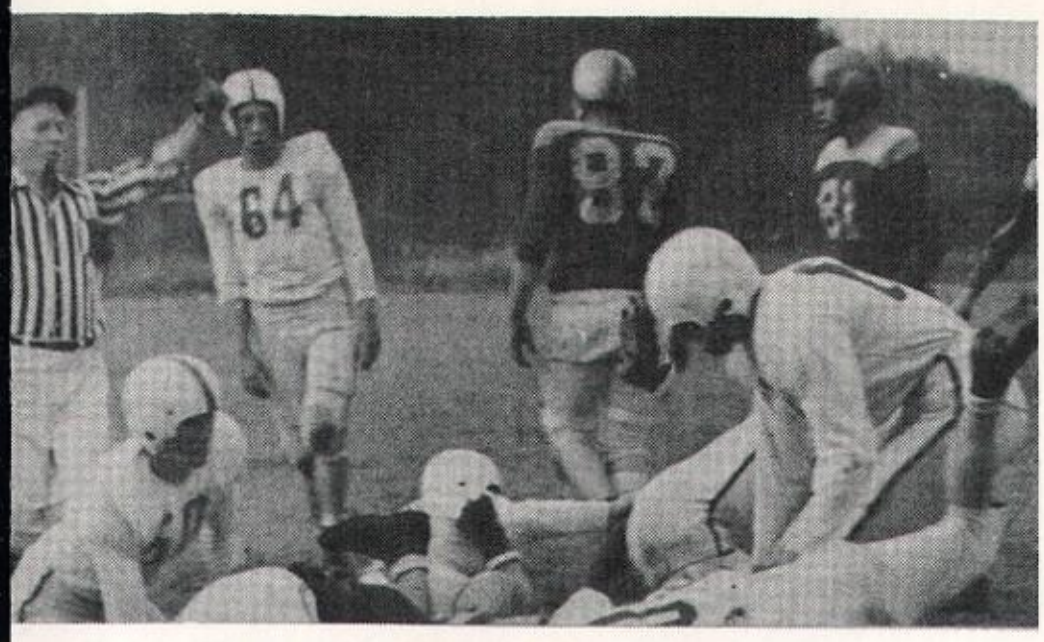
Due to an early deadline we usually are unable to cover Baseball. However, this year Coach Torgerson got off to an early start enabling us to get a picture. As we go to press the 1953 FALCON team looks trim in new uniforms and if enthusiasm is any indication of success, we can look forward to a season which will equal 1952. Last year the FALCONS won 5 while losing 1 to cop the Tri-County Championship. They were also the victors in the Island County Jamboree, defeating Oak Harbor 6-4.



L.H.S. gains another few yards.
